WISTHROP, as Sec. Express, says, that they are "sufe of that, if Cu taking the Chair, Mr. Webster was greet ONE HALF of the reports are true." There ed with nine distinct rounds of applause, and seems to be but hule doubt that the PEOPLE he then addressed the audience in a few reof the State of New York have declared them- marks, which were received with the greatest arlyes opposed to the "MISERABLE DUTCH PETTIFOGGER;" and the Loco Focos, by a majority not far from TEN THOUSAND! Van Buren's majority was about TWENTY FIVE THOUSAND at the Presidential election. If therefore, there is no doubt of the correctness of the returns and the reported results the Whigs of the Empire State have gained in a twelvemonth- THIRTY FIVE THOUSAND VOTES!?

MASSACHUSETES.

The annual election in Massachusetts, took place yesterday. The Whigs of the Old Comseonwealth need no spirit-stirring news from New York, to prompt them to the performance of their duty. They are always ready. Our friends there say, we much mot fear any falling off from their ranks. They cannot gain much. We publish the proceedings of the great meeting at Faneuil Hall, on Friday last. The Wings of Boston do those things excellently well.

NEW HAMPSHIRE. ..

The Whige of the Granite State are awake and waking. The call for a State Convention to be holden at Concord, the 21st inst is well answered from all parts of the State. They say that they do not consider their prospects of victory as half so hopeless as they did the prospects of their brethren in Maine, a while since. Heaven speed them.

A friend informs us that on Friday last he counted one hundred and sixty eight vessels in our harbor, sixty two of which arrived on Thursday night. Most of them are taking in brought. eargoes of lumber for different ports on the Atlantic coast, the Gulf of Mexico and in the West Indies. The fact of so many vessels being in our harbor at this time indicates a greater degree of prespority to one uncequainted with the business of Bangor, than actually exists. Nothing but the improbability of procuring freights in other parts, could send them here so late in tade them heartly welcome to this place not the season. Here they obtain freights, but whether at profitable rates, we are not informed. Nothing could induce the business men and owners of Lumber to aispose of this the great staple of the State, at the present depressed, and in many cases ruinous prices, but an earnest and laudable desire to cancel their liabilities.

Debts to a very great amount have been thus liquidated during this season. The quantity of iumber shipped, the present year, is as large as is any former year; but the prices have been full twenty five per cent less than in the two preceeding sections.

Amidst all the gloom of the times, Bangor hes presented a bustling, business-like aspect. True she was among the first to feel the pressure of the times. The blasting and withering effects of the miserable experiments upon the Chrismon, business and industry of the countryhave fallen heavily upon her. She was young, persented of but little capital, save the enterprize and intelligence of her citizens and the resources of the fertile and well timbered country of which she is the natural emporium; her citizens were in debt and depending upon the receipts of large amounts due them from various sources; her prosperity (like that of all other places,); depended upon a well regulated credit' system, under which she had grown up, and the pres rvation of confidence. In the prostration, temporary we trust, of credit and confidence, many of her debtors have been unable to meet their engagements, and her citizens have been compelled to rely upon the products of their forests alone, for means to meet their own. They have, however the consolation of knowing that their-lumber has fallen less than eny other of the staple articles of commerce, except provisions. And when sanity returns to our National Rulers, and the reign of Experi-

-mts and Ha abugs shall be at an end, and Seat to "go ahead" and make rapid advances in boolnes- and prosperity.

[From the Boston Atlas of Maturday, / GREAT MEETING AT FANEUIL HALL

ON FRIDAY NIGHT. Faneuil Hall was crowded last evening, by one of the greatest assemblages of citysens that ever convened within its time honored walls. Upon the entrance of Mr. Webster and the dis MIE RETURNS STILL COME IN WELL tinguished Whig representatives who had been EVERY WHERE THE WHIGS HAVE invited to attend, the old hall rang with loud and prolonged acclamations. "Three cheers for GAINED!

In the House of Assembly last year, the Van Buren majority was SIXTY! The numbers cheers for Graves!" were given in quick suc-

The meeting was called to order by the applause.

He observed that it was more than six years since he had the pleasure of meeting his tellowcitizens in Paneud Hall, and he desired to be thankful that he lived to see one more such occaston. He assured his tellow citizens that he had never assembled with feelings of deeper exultation and gratitude, than on the present occasion, whether he considered the agreeable duty assigned him, or the auspictous circumstances under which that duty had devolved upon him It would be his province to introduce to his fel tow citizens the distlaguished members of Congras who honored the city with their pres ence. They were from the mighty West, and from the great State of New York, and they came, not as strangers to strangers, but as fellow. countrymen to fellow .countrymen; they and theirs belonged to us, we and ours belonged fe-iprocany to them. - They represented—the great Western States of Tennesee and Kenlucky States where first appeared the flashes of that nght, which for the last six months, has been spreading over the condition of the country, and illuminating its darkness. He could inve wished that the other great states of the west Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Missouri States full of a constitutional, free, independent, and Whig spirit which could never be expunged, had also been represented-

They came too, from the great State of New ork. What should he say to them. He confessed that when, this morning, he opened his letters from New York, and saw in what manner that mighty City, that mighty State, had spoken their sentiments and intimated their desires the breathed deeper and freer than he had for eight years previous. The air seemed sweeter! Men stood more erect and their countenances beamed with inore delight than they had done for that long period. It would be his pleasing duty to present to the meeting the representatives from that great commercial capital, who had brought the good news, themselves the greatest good they could have

.He should be called upon to introduce to the personal-acquaintance of his fellow-citizens, he distinguished ornaments of the National House of -Representatives -- Messrs, Bell of Tennesseee, GRAVES and UNDERWOOD of Kenneky, and Hurraka and Cuaris of N York

Turning to these gentlemen, he bade them welcome to Massacusetta; he bade them welone and all, to the city of Boston : he abscure or unknown in the history of American liberty to old Faneuil Hall. They did not come unknown among us they followed only their reputation. The respect, sympathy, and regard they met here were accorded to them placeing, and his ch wence met with a response long before they left their own homes for this place. Though they dwelt afer, on the banks of the Western rivers they would be received by the people here as tellow American citizens. As such they would be welcomed as such they deserved to be welcomed. How much should old Massachusetts, who has seen some service in the controversies of liberty against power, and who, God be thanked, had never been disgraced in any campaign of those controversies how much ought she to be gratified at the events now in progress through out the country. Every where the strengh of soldier who carried the news of the battle of public opinion was making itself felt and who could determine the effect it would produce. He would not detain the assembly, except to speak a single word with relation to those citizens of New York who had quitted the party of the administration, and contributed to puzz duce the recent glorious result. He, for one, received them with gratification. He was refoiced that they had exhibited sufficient firmness of character and patriotism of spirit, to prefer, even at great personal excrinces, the interests of the country to those of their party. In New York there were many such, and while congratulating them on their course, he would call on others to follow their example to stop short at no half way principles of conservatism. Therwas before the country but one question, and that question had but two sides. The great cur rent of public opinion pointed to the success of the whig cause, and he who would stand with one fout on land and the other in the Whig boat, would probably be convinced that he was trying disastrous and embarrassing experiment.

He concluded by announcing to the audi-nce, the Hon. John Bell, of Tennessee. MR Bett on rising was greeted with immense cheering. He began by remarking how utterly unable he was to overcome the impression which the scene before him produced on He could not rid himself of the his feelings. feeting of awe produced by his entrance into these time hallowed precincus, where were assembled the lineal descendants of the originalconfidence sestored, Bangor will be among the ors of the revolution that he was in truth almost in view of Bunker Hill. Nor can I forget, said Mr Bell, that I am on the verge of that same Boston Port, which seventy years ago associated the reaching with the name of liberty. Passing by these thrilling recollections, I can scarcely less feel excited by the idea that I am addressing so large an assemblage of the respectable citizens of this place. Passing to the consideration of the leading political questions of the day, Mr Beil launched fourth into a rapid and eloquent survey of the abuses of the edminutration. Could it be bedeliberately formed and matured for blasting thethe dagree gone forth " perish ofedit! perish commerce! down with the eredit system and had it not been persisted in even to the present hour, by the profligate and unprincipled administration now in power? Touching upon the outrageous specie exacions of the administration, Mr B. remarked that, on all the pride of wealth and talent knowledge the office-holders, " the eternal office-holders," he office-holders, "the eternal office-holders," and authority when earth and neaven due to the plan and survey of Land purchased hy shall have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy shall have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy shall have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy shall have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy shall have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy shall have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy shall have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy shall have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy land have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy land have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy land have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy land have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land purchased hy land have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land have purchased hy land have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land have passed away truth shall arise, like the plan and survey of Land have passed away truth shall arise and the land have passed away truth shall arise and the land have passed away truth shall arise and the land have passed away truth shall arise and the land have passed away truth shall arise and the land have passed away truth shall arise and the land have passed away truth shall arise and the land have passed away truth shall arise and the land have passed away truth shall arise and the land have passed away truth shall arise and the land have passed away truth shall arise and the land have passed away truth shall works, had been habitually put off-with depre- Holy and Eternal God! crated paper. These arbitrary destinctions between the office holders and the people, show the extent to which an unprincipled adminisration may go in oppressing a free people.

In closing his animated remarks to which it s impossible to do justice in a brief and hasty sketch Mr Bell said that he came from a people poral and eternal, is retiance on the grodness who, though distant, were identified with us in jol God." principle and love for constitutional freedom people, who would unite with the people of Massachusetts in resisting to the utmost the ruinous measures and absurd policy of the adminstration. Mr Bell sat down in the midst of ong continued peals of applause.

Afer he had concluded, Mr Webster rose and emarked that although the inceting was rather political than a convivial one, he would ask a fermission to propose a sentiment :

"Mr Bell and the Whigs of Tenessee, and three times three." The cheers were given till the walls of old Fanenil reveberated to the sound. Mr Webster then announced that Mr Graves of Kentucky would address the meeting .--

Mr Graves, prefacing his remarks with a ribute to the hospitality and warm heartedness of the people of Boston, proceeded to remark upon the abuses of the present and late administrations. He spoke quite at length, but our confined limits prevent our giving even asketch of his remarks. He concluded with a stirring appeal to the people of Massachusetts to main tain their glorious stand against the administration, and to proclaim their judgment by an increased vate

Mr Unpenwood, of Kratucky, followed his colleague in a few impressive and eloquent remarks. In speaking of the abuses of the admin istration, he remarked, that it would be necessary to go to battle under one leader, and it was ar from impossible that that leader would be chosen from Massachusetts. This allusion to Mr Webster was enthusinationally applicaded.

After the Kentucky representatives had fin ished. Mr Webster proposed another sentiment to the following effect

The White Senators of Kenthicky Heary Clay and John J. Crittenden the White Repre sentatives of Kentucky and the whole Whig party of Kentucky.

Received with nine cheers! Mr Websterthan introduced Mr Ogden Hoffwith prolonged cheers.

Hon. Oopen Horeman rose-amidet deafen ing plaudits, and deligered a most thrilling soulstirring speech. His manner is remarkably from every voice in the ball.

Alluding to his texhausted condition, he remarked that he was like a worn out and disabled soldier from the field of victory. His voice was unfamiliar to his ears but he must be permitted to use it to tell the people of Boston the ne ble deads just done, by their brethren of New York. For the last four days his substance had been wasted in the tented field, and he could speak of little but feats of broil and of battles

He was almost in the state of the Athenian Marathon to the city of Athens, and expired immediately after promulgating it. Should be expire after saying a word, he could almost consider his death happy, since his last breath would be expended in giving publicity to the glorious deeds of regenerated frequent.

New York, said Mr. H. has come. How could she hold back. Massachusetta, Vermont, and Rhode Island were calling on her. Maine, degenerate Maine, had awaked from her long sleep of degradation and stavery at the sound of the oppressors voice and called on New York to October last, and three small children perished join her in her new position. Kentucky, Indi ana, and Tennessec, held out their hands in welcome to her, told her what the freemen o the West had done, and called on her to partake of her glory! How could she stay? She did not she came! The Empire State was to be found in the foremost-rank of freedom:

ready to do or die in the cause of the country. Mr Hoffman spoke for some moments, and sleard amidst such peals of applause as are rarely accorded to a public speaker. We may on Monday present a more extended sketch of his eloquent remarks. _

Mr Cuntil of New York, being catted upon rose and simply thanked the meeting in the mouth ; Cousins, Bulfast; Mary, Counts name of the Whigs of New York, for the kind Glounester; Watchman, Belfast; Mary reception which he and his colleague had met Ann, Long, Thomaston; Gen Jackson, Gilwith. Mr Webster than gave as a closing scuti ment "Our cause, which we believe to be the cause of the country and if our arm can make it successful, success shall attend it " Received with nine cheers!

It was then moved and carried, that when Boardman, do." this meeting adjourn, it adjourn to meet at the polls at twelve o'clock on Monday next!

Faneuit Hall has carely witnessed a larger assemblage of freemen, or echoed to the sounds of more appalling eloquence.

Leitch, in his "Travels in Ireland, says "In my morning rambles a man seiting on the ground, leaning his back ! against the wall, attracted my attention, by t look of squallor in his appearance, which I had rarely before observed, even in Ireland. His clothes were ragged, to indecency a very common exerimstance however with the males and his face was pale and sickly. He did not address me, and I turned back. Definition and Consolation. The Aurora Standard gives the following definition:

"A lucky Man . He who jurns two corner without being accosted by a dun, or meets a sherriff without being saluted in the name of the people.' These are very attentire times ' So they are; every body seems inclined to help his neighbor as far as a strong attachment goes There is one consolation, however, as Long Ned says having a constable by your side, PANY on which any Assessment is now dur and proves that you had credit once."

Another village Postmaster in Virginia has run away. The Louisville Journal says, the government will soon had out, that it is guilty a very great error in having banks with legs in great abundance. Still the supply is inadequate to the demand, and a dish of these preious leptiles can with difficulty be procured for less than twenty shiftings. The edible frog is seldom seen in England, but is common in France, Italy, and Germany. It has also been seen in Fortarshire in Scotland On the continent, these frogs are caught at night, in nets, with hooks bated, with worms, or with long rakes with close set teeth, which are drawn rap idly through the water. Their hind legs only are fricaseed, the fore legs and livers being put into soup. The bull frog, of croaking notoriety, is occasionally dressed and brought to the table in America, where the hind quarters are consided by some to form, an excellent dish, but the majority of individuals regard them as of too tough and fibrous a texture ever to be eaten for their intrinsic merits.
